APRIL INFORMATION
SESSIONS

Climate change and disasters are already affecting the health and wellbeing of people in our region. Events like extreme heat, bushfires and storms can disrupt healthcare systems, limit access to care, and increase the burden of both physical and mental illness. Impacts to social determinants of health, like housing, employment and social connection, further affect and undermine long-term wellbeing.

Resilient CARE is a new three-year place-based initiative working with communities and primary healthcare providers across Rockhampton, Livingstone, Gladstone, Bundaberg and Fraser Coast to build stronger, more connected and better-prepared regions.

Join us at a local information session to learn how you, your organisation or your community group can get involved.

Each session will cover

- ✓ An overview of the Resilient CARE program
- ✓ How climate and disaster events impact health
- ✓ Details on the upcoming Grant Opportunity (opens 2 April, closes 12 May, 12pm AEST)
- ✓ Networking to build partnerships and spark local ideas

Who should attend?

Community groups, primary healthcare providers, local councils, community service organisations, emergency services and anyone passionate about building local resilience to climate and health challenges.

See page 2 for location and date/time details.

Resilient CARE is delivered by Country to Coast Queensland in partnership with Australian Business Volunteers, The Good Shift, ClimateWell and Safer Future. The program is funded by the National Emergency Management Agency (NEMA) and the Department of Health and Aged Care.
